PROFIL

I combine professional consulting with passion and empathy

For more than 15 years I have been supporting people in developing and growing in their professional environment in line with their individual values, talents, and motivators. Here, I combine my systemic consulting competence with a high degree of empathy.

My customers describe me as a competent consultant, who pushes topics with a clear focus and who always succeeds in explaining new perspectives to others. They often tell me – "We really enjoyed working with you!"

Through continuous further development I not only develop others but also myself and in this way stay up to date with the latest topics and keep my finger on the pulse of time.

I am inspired and motivated by succeeding in making others think and by stimulating their desire for personal and professional development, and this is why I love my work.
