

CONSULTANT PROFILE

MARKO MÜHLENA

"Genuine development through depth psychology"

In more than 10 years of consulting experience I have been supporting people in growing as managers and in developing their personality.

It is my sincere desire to fully understand people and their goals by establishing authentic contact with my counterparts. Through this human depth, which also characterizes my work in individual coaching sessions and in the practice of depth psychology, a real personal development is made possible in the long term.

Supporting people in developing their personalities in a profound way inspires me again and again. Whether through development-oriented feedback in Development Centers or through practical real-life exercises in leadership training courses – that is the reason why I am also fully committed as a human being and adapt to the participants individually.

Customers therefore perceive me to be a flexible partner in implementing their participants' and managers' needs and goals.
