PROFIL

Enthusiasm drives my success!

Every person as well as every new venture has individual needs and challenges that need to be addressed. This knowledge is my inspiration and the reason why I focus on always finding the unique key to ignite enthusiasm. Because that is the driver for motivation and results in successful change.

The area of positive psychology is both my intellectual home and my testing ground. At the same time, I am familiar with the often complex HR issues in the area of personnel development. Combining these two worlds is essential for me and in the past I have often impressed people with creative solutions, improvisation, and new perspectives. For me, the ambiguity of innovative paths must always be reflected on while focusing on the empowerment of people. Whether in diagnostics, training, or transformation projects, change is only experienced as adding value if all stakeholders embark on this path together and no one is left behind.
