PROFIL

People make the difference!

I am motivated by supporting people and organizations in their development. I am convinced that the mix of competence, fit, and trust in cooperation leads to satisfaction and excellent results.

For over 15 years I have supported people in overcoming their professional challenges. Be it questions of leadership and communication, selection and development processes, change processes, questions of cooperation and team development, or personal topics – the holistic nature in my approach makes it valuable for others.

My customers experience me as an empathic, trusting, and constructive trainer and consultant who supports them individually on the basis of well-founded models and methods and with a high degree of empathy. For me, trust is the basis of successful cooperation. Building on this, I succeed in developing and implementing practicable solutions with a good dose of hands-on mentality, creativity, and flexibility.
