Understanding, encouraging, and supporting people in their development

By choosing me, you will gain a partner who has a sense for what is feasible and the courage to also address uncomfortable issues. My high regard for my counterparts and their extensive experience helps me to quickly build trusting relationships. My goal is always to understand matters profoundly.

Getting people on board, inspiring them, and gaining their trust is an automatic process in our cooperation.

For more than 20 years, I have been deeply passionate about the topics of corporate culture, talent management, team development, and communication. I bring my experience as head of human resources development for an insurance group to our joint work.

I am committed to ensuring that people experience joy in their workplace, contribute their talents, and assume responsibility – for the company, the team, and themselves.
